‘Personal data breach’ means a breach of security leading to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of, or access to, personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed.

When the personal data breach is likely to result in a high risk to the rights and freedoms of natural persons, SZIGET shall communicate the personal data breach to the data subject without undue delay using clear and plain language.

The communication to the data shall not be required if any of the following conditions are met:

- a) the controller has implemented appropriate technical and organisational protection measures, and those measures were applied to the personal data affected by the personal data breach, in particular those that render the personal data unintelligible to any person who is not authorized to access it, such as encryption;
- b) the controller has taken subsequent measures which ensure that the high risk to the rights and freedoms of data subjects is no longer likely to materialise;
- c) it would involve disproportionate effort. In such a case, there shall instead be a public communication or similar measure whereby the data subjects are informed in an equally effective manner.

The exercise of the right to data portability shall be without prejudice to the right to erasure ('right to be forgotten'). The right to data portability shall not adversely affect the rights and freedoms of others.

Right to object:

SZIGET shall provide the requested information and notification free of charge. Where requests from you are manifestly unfounded or excessive, in particular because of their repetitive character, SZIGET may either charge a reasonable fee taking into account the administrative costs of providing the information or communication or taking the action requested, or refuse to act on the request.

SZIGET shall communicate any rectification or erasure of personal data or restriction of processing carried out to each recipient to whom the personal data have been disclosed, unless this proves impossible or involves disproportionate effort.
